CALL FOR PAPERS

Theme: Knowledge production on and within Africa

Venue: Metropolitan University Prague, Czech Republic

Date: October 22 - 23, 2015

In the globalized world, Africa is misrepresented twice: by the ways knowledge about it is selected by gatekeepers of knowledge and by deliberate suppression of knowledge on Africa. Indeed, knowledge production, dissemination, circulation and consumption are heavily affected by global power dynamics, particularly by the legacies of inherited power relations and their continuing effects on modern global culture and politics, in which Africa's role seems to be marginalized.

Viva Africa 2015 conference will discuss the present dynamics of knowledge production on Africa around the world and seek changing its post-imperial pattern. We welcome contributions from diverse academic/intellectual perspectives that add to the knowledge relevant for speaking to social realities in the African continent: papers exploring current trends in knowledge production and the impact that they have on Africa; examining the existing knowledge-producing frontiers in Africa; challenging methodological and theoretical universalisms in expatriate social science scholarship on the African continent; assessing the role of social scientists in advancing social progress through decolonizing knowledge production on the continent; contributions on how indigenous and modern knowledge systems interface; on the role of African epistemologies and intellectuals in the production of knowledge; how knowledge was produced from the precolonial, colonial and postcolonial Africa and what are its implications in development; and on the contribution of African studies in post-communist Europe, Asia or Latin-America to providing new perspectives on Africa.
